Blue Six, Close To Home

five o'clock
i don't know what to do it's much to late to call it's too soon to go and see you if i arrived with a suitcase at your door would you throw your arms around me would we make love on the floor?

with different lives we sleep in separate beds we sleep in different countries while your voice plays in my head if i had tried to be smarter than before would you tell me that you miss me would you love me even more?

it feels right won't you remember me you're alright just think of me and you're always close to home little lies and feelings of regret from wounds that never heal from memories i'd fled windy night and trouble at the door hiding in the quiet i remember where you are Remember......

it feels right won't you remember me? you're alright

it feels right won't you remember me? the cold nights just think of me and you're always close to home

it feels right won't you remember me? you're alright

Feels alright feels so good Feels alright feels so good Feels alright feels so good Feels alright feels so good think of me.....;-)
