

Bob Catley, I'll Be Your Fool

Everybody needs a special love
A raging heart, a dream for a dreamer
The strongest light in the stars above
A precious touch to turn a believer

To see a smile in a lover's eyes
Burning strong, the heat of desire
To hold a special love that never dies
I'll be the one, the flame to your fire

But if the fire grows cold
You need someone to hold through tears and sadness
To break the chains and set you free

I'll be your fool, I'll be the sunshine on a rainy day
I'll be the rock that stands, the shelter through the storm
I'll be your fool, I'll be the blue sky when the clouds are grey
I'll be your light, your love, the fire to keeps you warm
I'll be your fool for you

Everybody needs someone to hold
No lonely nights, the flame still keeps burning
Someone to turn to when love grows cold
You call my name and you know I'll come running

And when you can't go on
I'll be the one to hold through tears and sadness
To break the chains and set love free

I'll be your fool, I'll be the sunshine on a rainy day
I'll be the rock that stands, the shelter through the storm
I'll be your fool, I'll be the blue sky when the clouds are grey
I'll be your light, your love, the fire to keeps you warm
I'll be your fool for you

I'll be your fool, I'll be the sunshine on a rainy day
I'll be the rock that stands, the shelter through the storm
I'll be your fool, I'll be the blue sky when the clouds are grey
I'll be your light, your love, the fire to keeps you warm
I'll be your fool for you