

Bodyjar, Against The Wall

I remember times when we were young
And you were so unkind
You'd never understand the way I felt
So why were you so blind

You've got your back against the wall
You've got to think it over

And watch that you don't slip away
You'd turn to anyone you'd find and mess within your thoughts
We could share the times that we once had so why were you so blind

You've got your back against the wall
Don't slip away