

Bodyjar, Underwater

i know that there's something you're not telling me maybe i dont want to hear you say it dont think that you're somewhere you're not supposed to be cause you're not you know that i want you here

sometimes i fall apart
and dont know what to do
she brings me back again

its like trying to breathe underwater im just trying to break down a wall you're offering me all the answers i wont throw them away like before you told me that life's too short to have regret every word you said has a stronger meaning leaving is the last thought that had crossed my mind gonna close my eyes to yesterday

sometimes i fall apart
and dont know what to do
she brings me back again

its like trying to breathe underwater
im just trying to break down a wall
you're offering me all the answers
i wont throw them away like before

sometimes i fall apart
and dont know what to do
she brings me back again

its like trying to breathe underwater
im just trying to break down a wall
you're offering me all the answers
i wont throw them away throw them away like before
throw them away like before
throw them away like before
throw them away like before
throw them away like before