

Bombs and Beating Hearts, Love Is Freedom

"your only danger lies in safety" that's what she said to me.
and life, it serves the risk taker, so let's see what we can be.
grab a mask put on some black clothes and well paint some graffiti.
join the infamous bike jihad, be all that you can be.
and we'll need love like this beating heart you see,
it can kill you, or it can set you free.
and we'll need violence like this bomb inside of me,
it can kill you or it can set you free.
and so she grabbed me by the wrist and showed me something new.
we fell in love and revolution, there was nothing we could do.
this time of night always feels so right, and it always feels so true, your love it brings me freedom nothing else will ever do.
and we'll need love like this bomb inside of me,
it can kill you, or it can set you free.
and we'll need violence like this beating heart you see,
it can kill you or it can set you free.
how can you be afraid if your life never even starts?
we're the deadliest things in the world, fin bombs and beating hearts.
and it just feels so right. how could it ever be wrong?
and she and i we share a kiss as we light our fire bombs.
and i'll raise it to the sky and it's here in front of me.
