

Bottomley John, A Candle In The Dark

Bottomley John

Blackberry

A Candle In The Dark

Dreamer rise above the tomb

Goodbye lonesome haunted room

Eyes of laughter dawns revenge

Spreads his vision out like an open hand

A smile can open those sleeping eyes

Silver lined parcels of butterflies

Let freedom ring those bells of freedom

Unshaken by time lies a kingdom

Into the belly of a whale

Divine thrill of a reaching sail

Darkness blooms darkness sings

Travelled by dark feet and dark wings

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

In memory of the future

In memory of the future

In memory of the future

Rivers of truth in the wild west wind

In every seed in every stem

A giant's throne for a creature

The sky the sea the rain becomes your teacher

The whispering hemlock the mountain rain

Never changing ever changing

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark

One more candle in the dark