A Literary Love Song

oh how i wish that you were here with me to listen to the stupid song i sing adjectives and nouns for all to hear from an oxymoron to your ear you're every comma and every quote of every word and every sentence that i wrote from my mouth do these words spew every single syllable for you if i string the words together right you should see you should be
with me tonight
please open your thesaurus wide so i can put my dictionary inside my participle's long been dangling please conjugate me if you can you're every vowel in every verb and every word of every paragraph and blurb i don't wanna be a footnote
from my mouth do these words spew
with me tonight
capitalize me and indent me please add my chapter to your index i need your plagiarism you give great definition dewey decimal system if you don't trust me check my bibliography and hear me sing...
every single syllable for you
you should see you should be
with me tonight
