

Bracket, Warren's Song, Part 10 out of habit you loved everyone but now your hate can outshine the sun

i hope our separate ways never collide my hello will hurt more than your goodbye

i am charming now
i am charming now
i am charming now that you are gone you're bleeding from the smile again you are the one who dies in the end

i hope our separate ways never collide
my hello will hurt more than your goodbye

i am charming now
i am charming now
i am charming now that you are gone

you are dwelling on your better days tell me something - were they better days? you will threaten me to steal from more inspired times you will sugar-coat the truth for the rest of your life goodbye!

i am charming now
i am charming now
i am charming now that you are gone