

Bracket, Warren's Song, Part 6

How can I love someone else
If I can't love myself
I'm just sharing the abuse
Distance made my heart grow weak
Because it's you that I need
I'm just strong enough for two

I sit in solitude only thinking of you and me
And I realize you're the one who brings the sun into my daze

It's easy to see now with my head in the clouds today
And I realize together
We'll drift off into old age

I'll just sit and think of nothing
'Cause nothing keeps me sane

How can I trust someone else
If I can't trust myself
I'll just keep away from the cold
There's an angel in disguise
Keeping me from the lies
I tell and the ones I'm told

I sit in solitude only thinking of you and me
And I realize you're the one
who brings the sun into my daze

It's easy to see now with my head in the clouds today
And I realize together
We'll drift off into old age