

Bradley Hathaway, Like Socrates Loved The Truth

Like Socrates loved the truth,
Like Sherlock Holmes loved to prove,
Like a child loves balloons,
Like a zoologist loves baboons,
So do I love you (So do I love you)
So do I love you (So do I love you)
Like a pilot loves his wings,
Like an angel loves to sing,
Like a ballerina loves to dance,
Like a criminal loves a second chance,
So do I love you (So do I love you)
So do I love you (So do I love you)
Like a baker loves dough,
Like a philosopher loves to know,
Like a comic loves laughs,
Like a toddler loves a bubble bath,
So do I love you (So do I love you)
So do I love you (So do I love you)
With a love that will last,
Through shadows that are cast,
From life and its pains
The cold winds and the rains,
So I will always run my fingers,
Through your hair.
So I will always be at,
Your side, right there.
Like Johnny loves June,
Like flowers love to bloom,
Like a knight loves a princess,
Like a mother bird loves to nest,
So do I love you (So do I love you)
So do I love you (So do I love you)