

Brandtson, Days End

do you care. do you try.
do you live.
do you want to die.
hold on brother of mine.
try to see yourself from the inside.
i can see the want in your eyes.
you said you wanted everything and more than i ever had.
you stood beside yourself
and said that you would never be satisfied.
whatever happened to the reasons why we turned our lives around.
are you pretending it was all for nothing and all just wasted time.
doesn't that make you a liar.
do you remember when we said that we would never be torn away.
why can't you understand that what you've done doesn't have to be who you are.
i know you're broken by the way you look at life with empty eyes.
and now you're telling me that everything is fine
