

Brett Dennen, Just Like The Moon

I believe that you were born during an eclipse and the stars named you moon child then you come, you rise in to my sky you stepped in front of my sky and it makes my whole world dark and you light up the night
just like the moon
just like the moon you light up the night and sometimes, sometimes I only get a sliver of ya but I'm hopin', I'm hopin' for a full moon tonight laid back and I'm restless in the daytime and I'm chased by these shadows oh thats haunting me and then you come with nighttimes woolly blanket and you wrap me like a child who's been in the rain too long
and sometimes, sometimes I only get a sliver of ya
oh I've chased the moon, ya know I've tried and each time I've tried, each time I've failed and each time I get so down on myself and I can't stand this pace of a snail while the rest of the world pales all the night ya know I know that I can probably never be the same 'cause you light up the night
and sometimes, sometimes I only get a sliver of ya
and in the night
I can feel your lovelight shining bright falling down on me like autumn leaves tell me how am i supposed to fall asleep
bringing light into the day and I'm coasting on your rays when I awoke, you spoke through the mist of the mystic bliss casting shadows
on all my dismal yesterdays
do you remember that you told me, darling that I was so real
I tell you all my tears for you are real and we'll cross that bridge again some day I know we will
I hope we will desert sunset, a lullaby if I could give it all to you if you'd only let me try sing so sweetly, it's my only wish music drips from your lips like sweet sips of a summer's kiss summer raindrops are precious, tongues twist and Ive been waiting all this life in the company of one and I know I am young but I dont want to be alone if you could only just consider the two of us
I know darling
I could be so good to you

I see you rising, on the horizon
when I awoke and you spoke through the mist of a mystic bliss
that I was so real
we'll cross that bridge again some day I know we will
desert moonrise, into the night before we lay our heads I wish to walk under the splendid starlight sing so sweetly, it's the sweetest sound and I've become weak in the knees and I drop down and kiss the ground and all my cares lie far below in this earth I wish to die in this hearth my fire grows
