

Bright Eyes, Messenger Bird's Song

the kitchen is cold but the coffee is warm and the sun's coming up the day has just begun and you're already bored.

bored of cheering me up bored of calming me down bored of drying my eyes but there once was a time when you were the one. you were the blue of the sky you came after the storm you were the switch on the wall in the dark of the hall i'm still fumbling for cause i'm lost in the black i don't know where i am. arms stretched out in front i'm calling your name just as loud as i can i know there's words that we will never speak and the questions can't be answered easily but i wanted to be easy so nod your head if the plans have changed shake it, love, they stayed the same smile at me and i will stay start to cry and i'll go away just please don't leave me guessing.

so you made me come then you sent me away like a messenger bird so i circled the earth blown away in the wind but i always returned with some new little song some sad story to tell of a brief love affair with a girl i compared to you and she failed you said you don't want me to beg then you said get down on your knees cause you knew that i would if i do any good satisfying your needs.

and i know all about those things we cannot speak and just so you know well they don't bother me so you don't have to be worried, just
nod your head if the plans have changed shake it, love, if they stayed the same
smile at me and i will stay
start to cry and i'll go away
just please don't keep me waiting just nod your head if your mind's been changed shake it, love, if some hope remains just say the word and of course i'll stay roll your eyes and i'll go away just please don't leave me guessing.

just please don't keep me waiting