

Brightwood, Swan Song

Come alone
And make no attempt to save yourself from what you know had to happen.
Come alone.

I wish I would have listened when I figured out
You knew me from the inside.
Your eyes on mine, on mine.
And I'm afraid and alone with your eternal love in my hands
And this bread, your body.
I know you know.

Come alone
From the garden to the hill
Come my love.
I have fallen.
I have betrayed.

So irresolute in my mind.
I can't stop pacing, anticipating.
Could this be my fate in the end.
Cause I'm afraid in the light of the look in your eyes when they're locked on mine.
I turn away, cause I know you see right through me.

Come alone from the garden to the hill.
Come my love.
I have fallen.
I have betrayed you.
so here I lie.
my guilt is my sentence.
You have been my life, and I will end it with a kiss.

Come alone my love, my love.
I have fallen.
I have betrayed.