Bryan White, Look At Me Now

Here you are on the back of my mind again Don't guess it's gonna get any better Is your memory ever gonna end Or does it go on forever

I was the one when you left town Said I'd get along somehow Didn't take long to find out That I was wrong

Look at me now Nothing but a whole lot of time on my hands Look at me now Thought I wouldn't need you, now I understand You said I was never gonna learn Look at me now

I was so busy looking out for myself I know I must have took you for granted Didn't want to make room for someone else Didn't know love when I had it

You were the one who set me free But you can lay the blame on me Come my way and you'll see I have changed

Look at me now Nothing but a whole lot of time on my hands Look at me now Thought I wouldn't need you, now I understand You said I was never gonna learn Just look at me now

Calling your name in the quiet of the night Seeing your face every time I close my eyes It's always the same, I keep hoping that you might Look at me now Standing here holding my heart in my hands Look at me now Wishing I told you we could still start again What I'd give if you'd turn And look at me now

Here you are on the back of my mind again ...
