

Buddy Lackey, It's A Ghetto would you believe what's going down inside my brain I don't believe you'd understand pay no mind to the ghetto man

I know the world is cold well that ain't nothin' strange but the way you push me down well it's gettin' old and I know it's never gonna change now I'm gonna start pushing back maybe that'll make you understand you can't push down on a ghetto man

I think you'd finally understand once you had to be the ghetto man it's a ghetto man

well I've got more love than money and I got more hope than fame I'll like to buy the world from under you someday and leave you sleeping in the rain and eating from the drain maybe that will make you understand once you had to be the ghetto man

it's a ghetto man
