

Burning Heads, Falling

You say that you ain't got a problem just when it comes into view
Always the same face, lost in the big mace
There's nowhere to hide for you.
Sometimes you act like a child as if you were million miles away
Always the same smile, you pretend to feel fine...
I got something to tell you, do you understand it?
I've got a message for you, won't you take it.
You close your eyes and you think there's no problem
Just open your eyes, see you're falling
There was a time when we used to be friends
But now, what has become of you?
You follow the mainstream, always the same scene, ignoring the world around
Sometimes you act like a child, refusing to face the truth, always the same smile
You say "I feel fine";