

By Heart, By Your Smile

You say I'm ugly, a monster from a tale
But you look good no matter what they say
I'm getting older, but you, you stay the same
Oh, what a beautiful refrain

And now I know by the fear inside your eyes
I know by your smile
You've lost your pride
At least for a while

And now I know by the fear inside your eyes
I know by your smile
You will get by
At least in a while

You look unhappy, you have yourself to blame
'Cause ugly girls they do know their faith
Your style is silver; the rest of you is blank
And now you keep on coming back

And now I know by the fear inside your eyes
I know by your smile
You've lost your pride
At least for a while

And now I know by the fear inside your eyes
I know by your smile
You will get by
At least in a while

I look at you now and I see by your smile
That nothing in this world will make you bother

You say I'm ugly, a monster from a tale
But you look good no matter what they say
I'm getting blinder, but you, you can foresee
That there is nothing left of me

And now I know by the fear inside your eyes
I know by your smile
You've lost your pride
At least for a while

And now I know by the fear inside your eyes
I know by your smile
You will get by
At least in a while

I know you by your smile
I know you by your smile
