By Heart, If I Turn Around

Strong as a wave and faster than the wind
You move across the darkness like a tank
Gas in the air makes it harder just to breathe
Something tells you this is what you need

But what if I turn around and leave you?
And what if I turn my back and tell you it's too late?
And what if I turn around to see you?
And what if I turn my back and never show my face?

Wind in your hair as you stumble through the fields
To the left you see some factories
Steal what you want 'cause your journey will be long
What I say is absolutely wrong

But what if I turn around and leave you?
And what if I turn my back and tell you it's too late
And what if I turn around to see you?
And what if I turn my back and never show my face