Cadell Meryn, Inventory

That was given to me Stole that from my family I bought that I'm labelling the stuff I got figuring what I've lost I'm looking into boxes trying to see myself Everything was close together when I woke up today The Welcome mat destroyed by the cat that I let in one day It could not settle down so I had to let it go This house isn't mine and that I know the truth coming out of the melting snow of the lawn of the previous owner It's int he way the windows close to greet me when it rains
