

Caedmon's Call, I Just Don't Want Coffee

Though I am small I've seen things far beyond these city walls,
The land is flat, it rolls for miles.
I don't know much, I know I've many places yet to see,
I know I've been here for awhile.
Wouldn't you know just when I thought I had this figured out,
I'm back at my first day of school,
Trying not to think too loud I raise my hand to scratch my head,
No ideas of what to do-

'Cause something's changed today,
What it is I just can't say,
And if I don't seem OK, I'm OK
So sue me if I just don't want coffee tonight-

I've got this friend who's been around the world a time or tow,
And he keeps maps on all his walls.
I've never been to France, I've heard it's nice this time of year,
Except I don't speak French at all.
I wonder, would it be as hard to have never seen you as to keep you from my sight?
And though I've talked about you to my friend a million tims,
I first saw you tonight.

I still hear you telling me what a big mistake I made,
Funny, that's what I've been telling you,
'Cause I can lead a horse to water, you can even make him drink,
But you can't change his point of view.
Tonight as I was driving home I passed a coffee shop,
And I glanced through the window there;
It was just like the one where you work, where I met you.
I didn't stop, I wouldn't dare,
'Cause something's changed today,
Your way is not my way,
Today's another day-
I'm OK-

So sue me, if I just don't want coffee tonight.
