

Cage, Philadelphia Experiment

All would be sacrificed to get what's needed through. Once again the world was at war we knew what to do. A union of the minds with Einstein. Tesla to. They would do what couldn't be done witnessed by few. The laws of science are falling. The laws of physics decay Gravity no longer holding us down no longer will we obey. All of your rules we leave them behind. They're made to be broken. They're crossing the line. The rules of the game are made to be broken. Aboard the Elbridge they would spin magnetic fire to make the ship and crew disappear that was their desire. The switch was thrown the engines groaned a warning cry. Something had gone terribly wrong there was no reply

[Pre-chorus / Chorus]

They didn't know just how transparent they would be a fate most cruel was suffered by those out there at the sea some bodies burst to flame and madness claimed the rest. Others suffered flesh within steel was this worth the test

[Pre-chorus chorus]

Breaking boundaries pushing the limit never relenting where did they go. The fabric will tear and into thin air they're far beyond visually cloaked.
