

Caliban, Supervision Until Death tortured by the agony of self-caceration - full of pain and fear - my sense of self-preservation keeps me alive - the whole way of life paved by affliction and danger - more & more I recognize the cruelty of reality - reality the greatest plot of life one walks - talks - sees - breathes - but doesn'T live - no - rather serve the growing edifice that controls our so - called life - death gives way to the living - straight into freedom way out of this edifice everyone a brick in this stonework and day by day more people live in it hour by hour their power rises and inevitably steals our breath
