

Candlebox, So Real

Breathe in

Are you the one about to crash it all?

You take another hit in time you'll fall, all the way

Summertime sidelines

Well you're the one about to crash it all

And you're the one who likes to blame us all

Consider this

Alright, You're the one fading baby

Well you're the one fading baby

Fading

My life, well everyone's taking stock in me

And everyone listens so faithfully to hear what's right from wrong

it's all they'll ever know

Alright, you're the one fading baby

Well you're the one fading baby

Fading

If I ever want to take my chance again, it's life

If I ever want to take my chance again again

So real, oh baby you're so real

Alright, life well everyone serves themselves you'll see

As hungry as you are to cash in on me, you'll be left in the cold

Fading, if I ever want to take my chance again, it's life

If I ever want to take my chance again again

So real, oh baby you're so real

Find your own life, live, it's far too hard to be alone

These lines you cross, they won't hinder me at all

I feel alive, graced beside

I owe all I loathe to you

Oh baby you're so real