Cans, The Key

In a world of eternal darkness At a place of long lost innocence They obey someone else's master They're just puppets on a broken string

In a time of undying fury
This creation is bound to fall
Down in hell, there's no gold, no glory
Hear the children as they start to pray

Here the voices of anger screaming Please unlock these chains We beg you, have mercy We will cede you The key to the undying world

Sombre days, yet a cryptic kingdom Nothing lives, nothing breathes no more All their lives they have reached for heaven In silent prayers, they have lost their fear

They will arise from severe oppression Out of the ashes they will rise once more And then the light will prevail the darkness Raise the flag and let us close this door

Here the voices of anger screaming Please unlock these chains We beg you, have mercy We will cede you The key to the undying world