

Carl Smith, House That Love Built

This is the boy that live in a house that love built
These are the arms that held the charms of the sweetest girl in town
These are the hands that made the plans for a house that love built
And this is the heart that got broke when the house got tumblin' down
The roof was made of moonlight with kisses warm and sweet
And all the beams were made of dreams that I laid at your feet
So walls are made of sunshine the sunshine of your smile
And all the bliss of that first kiss was mine for just a while

This is the boy who destroyed the house that love built
My empty arms have lost the charms of the sweetest girl in town
These are the hands that made the plans for a house that love built
And this is the heart that got broke when the house got tumblin' down
The roof was made of moonlight with kisses warm and sweet
And all the beams were made of dreams that I laid at your feet
If you'll start all over and say that you're still mine
I'll build from love that's strong enough to stand the test of time
