

Catrien Maxwell, Under the Influence

I find it funny that you couldn't even say goodbye
With all that we've been through I thought that you would at least try
But I've been looking through blind eyes
Now you've moved on and forgotten everything we were
And all I want now is just to be her
I'm just a shadow and nothing more
All I can do is stumble around, I'm not myself
Should have never lost myself to someone else
Now I can't focus, I can't think straight
No one can see me like this
I'm under the influence
Of love
My mind is frozen and stuck on the image of you
You couldn't just take my heart without breaking it too
And the whole time I thought I was foolproof
All I can do is stumble around, I'm not myself
Should have never lost myself to someone else
Now I can't focus, I can't think straight
No one can see me like this
I'm under the influence
Of love
I've had one too many tastes of you
Should have quit when I could still remember my name
But it's too late and I have to wait for this to fade
And in the morning I'll be so sick off you
Bloodshot eyes, can't recognize myself
And I'll say, "I think I'll stay sober for a while
All I can do is stumble around, I'm not myself
Should have never lost myself to someone else
Now I can't focus, I can't think straight
No one can see me like this
I'm under the influence
All I can do is stumble around, I'm not myself
Should have never lost myself to someone else
Now I can't focus, I can't think straight
No one can see me like this
I'm under the influence
Of a broken heart