

Century, Melancholic Light

It's like I always lived in this melancholic light
It's like I never said nothing more, than ironic lies
It's like I never found myself in you to know
It's like I never felt no one but myself

But now, these two hearts are falling
Into that sacred light, that sacred love forevermore
And there's no doubt, these two hearts are falling
To go this far, to be whole forevermore

It's like you always flew over me, so high above
It's like you never touched, something you adore enough
It's like you never trust the way we try to go
It's like you never trust no one but yourself

But now, these two hearts are falling
Into that sacred light, that sacred love forevermore
And there's no doubt, these two hearts are falling
To go this far, to be whole forevermore

It's like I always fight with this melancholic lie
It's like I'm always sad, even when I'm satisfied
It's like I never find myself in me to know
It's like I never find nothing in this light