

Charlie Landsborough, Child Of Candlelight

The winds of winter call my name
Their mournful voice keeps me from sleep
My memory flickers like a flame
Time cannot heal a wound so deep

Where are you
Where are you
Upon this dreamless night
Where are you
Where are you
My child of candlelight

The rainfall stutters on the glass
Sounds of sorrow without rhyme
The moon filled water shine like brass
I'm still a prisoner of your times

Where are you
Where are you
Upon this dreamless night
Where are you
Where are you
My child of candlelight

Waves of longing rise and roll
Across the oceans of my soul
I confess I can't control this longing

An empty prayer falls to the floor
The knot of loneliness is tied
The thought of seeing you no more
Darkens the emptiness inside

Where are you
Where are you
Upon this dreamless night
Where are you
Where are you
My child of candlelight
My child of candlelight
