

Charlie Landsborough, I Cried

So I looked into a dream and found you there
For the laughter in your eyes I looked everywhere
Such a long time searching, and the vision almost died
When I saw your face I cried.

So I took out all the prayers I'd said for you
And I lay them at your feet and they all came true
Then I felt the tingle of a turning tide
And as I thanked the lord I cried.

And I cried in recognition, of the fact that my conviction
After all this time had proven to be true
All my tears were shed in secret in the chamber of a heart
That had insisted in believing I'd find you.

From the gardens of my soul I pick a rose
Then I listen while my heart started to compose
A song of hope unending, many oceans wide
When you sang my song I cried.

So I thought of all the times I've been alone
So much love inside my heart looking for a home
I chose a star of beauty as my friend and guide
When it led me to your door I cried.
When it led me to your door I cried.
