

Charlie Landsborough, If Only

All I own, everything I do
I would surrender for one more tender night with you

All that's mine, all that I possess
Struggled and paid for, I'd gladly trade for your caress

I live and breathe your memory every day
I'm so afraid in time you'll slip away

Here inside forever you'll remain
I'd give up each pleasure and all that I treasure
If I could have you back again

I've dreamed of ways that could erase
The wrong that I've done
But everything I've tried has gone astray

Every night somewhere in my sleep
My dreams come true, my rendezvous with you I keep

I wish that I could change the way you feel
And somehow bring an end to my ordeal

My heart sings his old refrain
I could recapture the joy and the rapture
If I could have you back again

I could recapture the joy and the rapture
If I could have you back again
If only I could have you back again
