

Cheryl Wheeler, But The Days And Nights Are Long

But the Days and Nights Are Long (formerly known as: Boulder Hotel Room)

* Words and Lyrics by:

* Cheryl Wheeler

* Life is short, but the days and nights are long

* Time will heal all these wounds

* Some day soon

* I'll be rising I'll be strong

*

* But now I'm loosing all my battles

* Now I'm down and dropping still

* And this snow's blowing through

* Like some ghost

* With this blue I know too well

*

* Broken hearts keep on beating just the same

* So I guess I can too

* Go through these moves

* Facing forward, walking straight

*

* But now my glance keeps drifting downward

* Now my feet can't find their way

* And this cold's creeping in

* Through my bones

* Whisperin it's here to stay

*

* I'll bide my time, like there's any other way

* It moves too slow, moves too fast

* It's gone and past

* And stopped entirely today

*

* I know there's light on some horizon

* But I can't see so far ahead

* Patience and grace, blessed is love

* I'm loosin my faith

* In most of that stuff those wise men said
