

Chicane, Turning Corners

When you look back and there's nothing there
Pieces of you left undone
When you've been told "you're the only one";
Something's are not as they seem

You've never been wrong now, in discovering nothing's true
Forever's too long now, in wondering how I knew
That you're always on your way, turn corners, fade to grey

'Floating apart' were the words you chose
Distance is all that we need
Fold up the moon, put the sun to bed
Dark is a light on your skin

You've never been wrong now, in discovering nothing's true
Forever's too long now, in wondering how I knew
That you're always on your way, turn corners, fade to grey
You've never been wrong now, in discovering nothing's true
Forever's too long now, in wondering how I knew
That you're always on your way, turn corners, fade to grey

Everytime time you fall near me
There's nothing I can do
And all the time you looked at me
Just like I wanted to

You've never been wrong now, in discovering nothing's true
Forever's too long now, in wondering how I knew
That you're always on your way, turn corners, fade to grey
That you're always on your way, turn corners, fade to grey
