Chris Rea, Out Of The Darkness

There's an empty street in an empty town There's an old boutique selling ageing gowns Some words on the walls that were written By the light of the moon so bright

Can you hear me, can you her me tonight Take me out of this darkness and in to the morning light

The rain that falls doesn't make me cry And the wind that blows cannot hurt my eyes But the things that I see when I turn on TV Make me wanna lie down and die

Can you hear me, can you her me tonight Take me out of this darkness and in to the morning light Can you hear me Take me out of this darkness and in to the morning light
