

Chris Rice, The Face Of Christ

He shares a room outside with a dozen other guys
And the only roof He knows is that sometimes starry sky
A tattered sleeping bag on a concrete slab is His bed
And it's too cold to talk tonight, so I just sit with Him instead and think
How did I find myself in a better place
I can't look down on the frown on the other guy's face