

Chris Stapleton, Weight Of Your World

I want you to know wherever your road wants to go
I'll never be far, I'll always be right where you are
If you lose your way, if your hope is gone
I'll be the light that leads you home

Give me your darkest hour
Give me your deepest fear
Just give me a call and I'll be here
Give me the bars and chains that won't set you free
Give me the weight of your world
And lay it on me

There will come a time when all the words don't seem to rhyme
Please lean on me until you find the harmony
When it's hard to breathe, when the right seems wrong
I'll be the hand that helps you along

Give me your darkest hour
Give me your deepest fear
Just give me a call and I'll be here
Give me the bars and chains that won't set you free
Give me the weight of your world
And lay it on me

Wherever you go, wherever you've been
Anytime you need a friend

Give me your darkest hour
Give me your deepest fear
Just give me a call and I'll be here
Give me the bars and chains that won't set you free
Give me the weight of your world
And lay it on me

Oh, lay it on me
Oh, lay it on me
Give me the weight of your world
Just lay it on me
