Chris Whitley, Radar

From so far away You can see the light reflected Everyone back in town Have already been detected Slip under the radar tonight No one will know Where you have gone Under the radar tonight Don't make no motions Don't you betray no sign Got to attune your devotions Somehow above the power line Now you know there is no escape Therefore you know there is no Time to waste Away in the distance Now we can see the city shine Are you merely missing Or did you really resign? Slip under the radar tonight No one could know Where we have gone Under the radar tonight