

Christian Kjellvander, Portugal

hollowed and holy borrowed and brand the map's not the mountain the lay is not the land the waters of portugal beloved new
the waters of anywhere as a city blooms
all that I love will disappear
even if I stay
so I myself am going where my nervous blood will sway
lost and leaving my fate and on the twelfth day I'll take a stand
one ghost of many I'll raise my hand
all that I love will disappear
even if I stay
so I myself am going where
my nervous blood will sway
lost and leaving my fate