Christine Guldbrandsen, In Your Embrace

The winterwind
Came in from the north
And I could feel a change
She was whispering the worlds I heard
Oh, it was strange

So I got up and walked Towards where there was a sound You greet me with a smile so bright Like someone I've known Since ages ago

And there is no one here like you No one to love me like you do And there is little I won't do To keep you coming through And when you go away I only want to stay In your embrace

These traces of scarlet You left upon my skin A symbol of the red red rose I have within

And there is no one here like you No one to love me like you do And there is little I won't do To keep you coming through And when you go away I only want to stay In your embrace

And there is no one here like you No one to love me like you do And there is little I won't do To keep you coming through And when you go away I only want to stay In your embrace
