

Cindy Alexander, City Astronaut

Awake but absent mind - easily disturbed
By the reverb
Outside signal breaks your wave
Can I talk you down from space
Where's your cell phone
And I imagine you right here
In an icon silver sphere
Where we can breathe

City Astronaut
Can you set one foot on earth
So I can talk to you
Pity that you got
No more capsule air
By now we're under siege
Tell me who's the enemy
Not me

A radiated haze
In a cybernetic phase
Can leave you sterile
Online chatter from your lips
Tried to touch them
But they blipped
Got your email
And I imagine us in time
Less in body more in mind
Where we conceive

City Astronauts
Will they set one foot on earth
So we can talk to them
Pity that we got
No more capsule air
By now we're under siege
Tell me who's the enemy
Not me

And I imagine you right here
In an icon silver sphere
Where we conceive
