

Cindy Vouge, Always Something

Sometimes when you're lying beside me
In your eyes I see
I don't know, but it's something it's something
And it's tripping me up again
It's like you're here, but you're not here
I need to know where
But you won't let me go there
Always telling me it's nothing, it's nothing

Well I had a vision
Of a lover in my best friend
It's not like me to question

Something always gets in between
It twists and it turns
You know that it seems to me, lately
I'm so unsure
I can't put my finger on it, on it
Strange feeling ripping at the seams
And I've never heard
The sound of my heart breaking
Like this before
Before there was always something
Something, yeah

Think back on the days when we were falling
It was so good then
Never worried 'bout a thing, nothing
Well it's funny how things change
Now, a cold wind is blowing
But I was hoping
It's not the start of a bitter end
Could it be that you're something

Is someone else
Only time will tell
I thought I knew me so well
I shouldn't, shouldn't put me through this hell, yea

Something always gets in between
It twists and it turns
You know that it seems to me, lately
I'm so unsure
I can't put my finger on it, on it
Strange feeling ripping at the seams
And I've never heard
The sound of my heart breaking
Like this before
Before there was always something
Something

Something's always getting in between
And it's always ripping at the seams, yeah
Something's always messing with my Vision
It's not like me to question, he

Something always gets in between
It twists and it turns
You know that it seems to me, lately
I'm so unsure
I can't put my finger on it, on it
Strange feeling ripping at the seams
And I've never heard

The sound of my heart breaking
Like this before
Before there was always something
Something, yeah

C'mon c'mon c'mon c'mon c'mon c'mon Yeah
Oooohh yeeaaaaa
Oooohhh,
Before there was always something
Oooohh yeeaaaaa
Before there was always something