

Circle Of Dust, Refractor

Manipulate my thinking as you help me speak my mind
And you make decisions as your visions only help to keep me blind
Trampled cleanly underfoot while i'm told to stay where i am put
As you quickly run to your own safety leaving me here all alone to die

Sweet Refractor I'm indebted to you
For your need in choosing me to be the one to subdue
I've so much to think of when a push comes to shove
'Cause I know now that it's easier to hate
Hate than love

The sky breaks forth to shed its tears upon your broken once again
Stifled laughter quickly turns to sorrow as beginning runs to end
There's a missing piece you've left inside me nothing seems to fill the void
Oh God I long to feel the peace again and see the hate destroyed

Sweet Refractor I'm indebted to you
For your need in choosing me to be the one to subdue
I've so much to think of when a push comes to shove
'Cause i know now that it's easier to hate than love