City And Colour, In The Water, I Am Beautiful

And I know its not to get away from me, You just need a change of scenery So strange how everything went wrong so fast And I hope that this confusion does not last

These words might be, too little too late, And Im afraid that I have already lost you. Now three months equals eternity and this will be so hard And I will long to hold you in my arms

And when you ask do you love me And I should reply with yes most certainly And I always hesitate theres something lingering And I will try harder to be all that I can be

These words might be, too little too late, And Im afraid that I have already lost you now Three months equals eternity and this will be so hard And I will long to hold you in my arms
