

Claire Voyant, Twenty-Four Years

I hear your name and fall to desire
Here is a light and a hope on fire

I wonder how I could leave this again?
But here in the night and beside all your light?
I wonder how, How I?

For twenty-four years, I have drowned in my tears
And still can't find my way

I wear this name and I feel it's my disguise
Here was a light and a hope on fire

For twenty-four years, I have drowned in my tears
And still can't find my way

Never go
We can never say never
You can't breathe, "we will always stay together"
I say am fine
Behind four walls
Oh, but in this world
I am not fine at all

For twenty-four years, I have drowned in my fears
I still can't find my way.
