

Clawfinger, What Give Us The Right

What the hell do we know and what gives us the right to have our own opinion about the things that we don't like we must be fucking crazy to say the things we say and think we'll get away with it in any kind of way there's lot's of things we don't know but we do know what we think and no one has all the answers to every missing link but everyone can do their share in lots of different ways but it seems to be much easier to stick with old clichs

What the hell do we know, what gives us the right to say what we think about the things that we don't like
What the hell do we know, what gives us the right
To have our own opinion about the things we don't like

So welcome to the henhouse, let's see who talks the most let's see who's got some good to say and who just want's to boast Let's see who wants to drag us down so they can move on up So they can say they know it all as if they gave a fuck Well everyone's got questions and we've got a whole long list and of course we need solutions to the problems that exist but does that mean we're not allowed to say what we believe unless we have the answer to what everybody needs?

What the hell do we know, what gives us the right

So if you want to judge us you better judge yourself and know you've more answers than everybody else cos' if you're so much better you must surely have a cure that can make everything better than it ever was before and if you don't I hope you understand you're just like us and we don't like the silence so we're gonna make a fuss We point out all the problems but we haven't worked them out and if you say we can't you know that means we have to shout....

What gives us the right!
