Clint Black, We All Fall Down

I oughta know the look in another's eyes When there's something on their mind I think I saw that look in a lover's eyes They were looking into mine Like we both had found the one we want But found the one we wanted just quit trying.

So we tell ourselves that what we found Is what we meant to find That's what we tell ourselves You won't believe the things A heart could tell a mind Somehow we sell ourselves on love I just don't think I'll believe my heart this time.

I oughta know the language well
I've heard me tell myself these things before
I finally made my mind up
My heart tells me to look for something more
Determined not to wind up wondering was she the one
Well, you never can be sure.

So we tell ourselves that what we found Is what we meant to find That's what we tell ourselves You won't believe the things A heart could tell a mind Somehow we sell ourselves on love I just don't think I'll believe my heart this time.

So we tell ourselves that what we found Is what we meant to find That's what we tell ourselves You won't believe the things A heart could tell a mind Somehow we sell ourselves on love I just don't think I'll believe my heart this time...
