

Closterkeller, No Matter What Will Be

When I give in to feeling
The fire awakes and grows
My reason dies on me
It melts like the early snow
Will I fall or go on
I don't care, I chase the dream
My eyes are covered now
It's only you I wanna see

No matter what will be...

My conscience's drifting off
Your words lull it to sleep
I wait for nothing at all
I don't ask a thing, there's no need
The sunlight somewhat dies
When you leave to seek her out
Trying to hold my head high
I look up, and stumble down

No matter what will be...

Nothing's left now when the mind is blazing
Nothing's gonna keep the wave from rolling
It's my right to love you and die chasing
It's your right to ever keep on running

When I hear what you're thinking
Though your thoughts are not mine to get
When I can hear your calling
Her face is gone somewhere far away
Again my conscience's drifting
Your words lull it back to sleep
I don't expect a thing
No more to ask, no need

Nothing's left now when the mind is blazing
Nothing's gonna keep the wave from rolling
It's my right to love you and die chasing
It's your right to ever keep on running

No matter what will be...