

Coalesce, You Can't Kill Us All

what more do you want from me?
some sort of apology?
well I promise that forgiveness is the most you'll get.
and what I demand of you is to put up or shut up.
so make your decision,
but remember-you can't kill us all.
I know you don't know what you say but I don't feel any safer from you.
hate is too easy and we'll both find a way to be right.
no matter how far a stretch.
and even now i've all but forgotten what we're fighting for.
to end something or to begin it?
I don't even know why I care to continue.
old habits die hard I guess. but we don't.
and the threats are still made.
i'll kill you. even though turning away seems safer.
I want to be in the middle.
I want to go for the jugular. but I don't remember why.
was it to start something or to end it?
I know why I continue. I do it all for them.
for her I can be an influence and for them a backbone.
to end the old and begin a new age of compromise and clear thinking.