Collide, Inside

inside your head i'd stroll around in synthesis and i'd find a way to connect all things to search and roam around take you far away to search and roam around take you to another place inside your own illusion i stroll around the passages while i find a way to connect all things to search and roam around take you far away to search and roam around take you to another place so what i am dreaming of what about you so saturate tell me what can i find here when you vanish in the air i get caught in the rain that falls in your doorway chance is all you need whatever you see you belong too no wasting time overlook wrong decisions or my confirmations so that i can be
