Colony 5, God

I run towards the eye of the storm. I run so fast I hit the peak of my form. I stand alone as a god in the making, I wear you down till you are breaking.

I stand firm in the climates fighting. I blow the wind and create the lightning. I whip the rain from the face of the seas. I spin a tornado that folds the trees.

I have to keep sane in a world of senseless noise. I have to keep silent if I want to spare my voice. I should hide underground where the silence sounds

I'll reach up and take the moon away, I'll put up a sun and make the night into day!
